

Hemdean House School – In a Class of its Own

Families Magazine – January / February 2018

Hemdean House School – In a Class of its Own

Caversham based non-selective independent primary Hemdean House School is celebrating after being placed as the 29th highest achieving independent prep school in the country by The Sunday Times. Ranked by its recent examination results, the school was also one of the highest placed independent primary schools in Berkshire, amongst some of the most prestigious schools in the UK.

The school, located in Hemdean Road since 1859, has its own woodland and is equally proud of its outdoor learning programme and accredited Forest School which is a key part of every child's weekly timetable and has achieved the coveted Gold Award status from The Woodland Trust.

The school has recently welcomed an inspirational new Head Teacher, Mrs Helen Chalmers, who is an ISA Executive Board Member and an ISI school inspector. Commenting on the school's success, Mrs Chalmers said: 'Whilst we recognise that academic results are relevant, of equal importance is our key focus of centring on each child as an individual, developing happy, kind and respectful pupils that have a love for learning and fulfil their own potential in a welcoming, caring and nurturing family environment.'

